

The distinctive living environments of Angelica Henry evoke the spirit and personality of its owners using a sophisticated yet versatile aesthetic comprised of striking finishes, unexpected details and carefully curated furnishings. Blending the personal with the practical, the Scottsdale-based designer and owner of Angelica Henry Design crafts interiors that are both beautiful and comfortable. “I strive to create impactful and inspiring yet livable and functional designs that speak to each and every client,” shares Henry. With a focus on individuality, each project of Henry’s is tailored specifically to the needs and tastes of the client. “Each project revolves around the homeowner—their needs, wants and lifestyle. The final design is not only a culmination of my aesthetic but is also largely a part of who they are,” she says.

“Each client deserves an environment that is a reflection of who they are and that enhances their lifestyle.”

What led you to your current profession?

I have always loved using my creativity since getting in trouble for coloring on the walls at a young age. Interior design seemed like a good way to explore that creativity on a daily basis.

How do you think your clients would characterize you?

My clients have commented that I am innovative, thorough and responsive and that I even interpreted their design style beyond what they had imagined!

What projects have brought you the most satisfaction and why?

I relish the projects where I am able to work alongside talented architects, builders and other professionals throughout the entire process. It allows me to draw from the architectural details and thread everything together from the big picture to the smallest details.

Who or what inspires you most?

I find inspiration in everything around me. Simply seeing a new product or material can often spark my creativity. I also love to reinterpret and use conventional materials in an unexpected way.

What do you like most about your job?

I just love to design—period! I am forever on the hunt for the perfect material, furniture piece or light fixture, and if I cannot find it, I design one.

1 Cotton, my Slovensky Cuvac, has an enormous personality to match his size and always makes me smile. 2 I love to design and incorporate light fixtures that make a bold statement. This custom backlit panel serves as both lighting and art. 3 I enjoy spending time outdoors while hiking and geocaching.
